The Trial and Sentence of King.

The trial of James C. King for the murder of O'Neill, in New York, closed as previously announced by telegraph, on March 12th, and on the 13th, Judge Brady sentenged the convicted man to State Prison for life. The papers say that general satisfaction was felt at the result of this trial. The crime comto king than, my one else. His counsel had made a fine effort to clear him on the plea of insanity, and the prisoner was hopeful of acquital. Between acquital and imprisonment for life he is sane enough to see a terrible difference. In dealing with the insanity defense, Judge Brady was clear and intelligible. His charge to the jury on this point was admirable, and cleared away many of the sophistries God and man that they shall do so, equally as powerful and binding as the rule that the insane man, in the sense explained, is relieved from responsibility."

Had this rule been laid down and observed in numerous cases that the reader will readily recall, there would have been fewer verdicts of not guilty in the past. There is hardly room here for a verdict of "insane, at the moment of committing the deed, but sane immediately before and after its commission." The definition of insanity, given by Judge Brady, affords opportunity for justice to the insane and to society.

SATURDAY, MAY 2. THE ROYAL SPEECH on the occasion of the opening of the Logislative Assembly, (which appears elsewhere in to-day's Appearises) is by far the best state paper of the kind that has ever appeared here, not excepting even some of the earlier atterances of Kamehameha IV.; and in its plain and straightforward declarations of administrative policy and lucid detail of statement is in marked contrast with the stereotypet speeches from the Throne of past years, which have generally consisted of a few brief sentences of skillfully constructed diplomatic non-commit-

The important subjects of economising the expense of carrying on the Government; the increase of the people, immigration of free labor; rrigation and the water supply; are urged upon, the consideration of the Assembly with an earnestness and in a tone of manly hopefulness that cannot but create a responsive ambition in members to second the enterprising and liberal policy thus indicated from the Throne. In directing the attention of the Legislature to the most prominent subjects to be considered, His Majesty has discharged the high duty incumbent upon him in a manner that must command the unqualified approval of the country; it only remains for our Legislators on their part to display equal wisdom Sloop Live Yankee, Clark, from Hans, Mani.

> THE ARRIVAL of His Majesty in town on Saturday last, completed a Royal Progress throughout the islands that in systematic thoroughness has never been equalled by any of our Kings, since the first Kamehameha. Occasionally, during their several reigns, His Majesty's predecessors have made short visits to particular portions of their dominions, but there were many localities ti at had never been honored by the presence of the Sovereign until now. Coming to the Throne a little over two months ago, His Majesty has during that brief interval industriously journeyed by sea and land, and has visited in their homes and spoken in person to the great majority of his subjects, from Kau to Kauai. The general effect cannot be otherwise than beneficial; inasmuch as that not only are King and people made better acquainted with each other, but the latter, in listening to the paternal and stirring addresses of His Majesty and perceiving the deep and active interest he evinces in their welfare and improvement, will ponder the meaning and spirit of his utterances, (taken up and repeated by the press) and activity in the work of self preservation and recuperation. The King in this regard may be styled a Missionary, who has gone out among his | ened for a time the peace of the city, but which people preaching a new political gospel. His Majesty evidently believes that the people have within themselves the elements of recuperation, and he struck the key-note to new life and vigor when at Labaina he said to his hearers-" Let us thoroughly renovate our own selves, to the end that, causes of decay being removed, the nation may grow again with new life and vigor." And will not every one that has any spark of aloha for Hawaii and the Hawaiians lend every possible aid in seconding the efforts of our King for the preservation and the growth of the race? To repeat what we have once before said in this connection -" By assuming that the Hawaiian race is positively doomed to disappear from the face of the earth, we are helping along that result; but if we assume the contrary-if we but imbue the people with the idea that they have within themselves the elements of renewed life, and that they are

THERE APPEARS to be a general belief that the present Legislature will, when it comes to the consideration of the biennial Bill of Appropriations, apply the principle of retrenchment quite thoroughly, and make reductions in the salaries of all government officials. There is no question as to the absolute necessity of retrenchment in some of the government expenditures. This is patent enough to all, even without the confirmation which will be afforded by the Report of the Minister of Finance. The word then, will be, amendment removing the property qualification economy and reduction of expenses in every di- of voters. OPENING OF THE LEGISLATIVE ASSEMBLY!

Pursuant to Royal Proclamation, the Regular Session of the Legislature for 1874, was formally opened by His Majesty the King in person, at 12 'clock noon, on Thursday last, the 30th ultimo, in the Legislative Hall of the new Government building. The doors of the Hall were opened to the public at a few minutes past eleven, and the space reserved for spectators was speedily filled with ladies and gentlemen, there being probably not far from 1,000 persons in attendance. In front of the dais (on which was placed the Thronechair, covered with the ancient feather cloak of the King, and the Nobles and Representatives. On the right were Her Majesty Queen Kapiolani, the Princesses Kamakaeha Dominis and Likelike Cleghorn, Her Majesty the Queen Dowager Emma, and the ladies of the Court. On the left were members of the Diplomatic and Consular Corps and their ladies, and the Commander and

Officers of the U. S. S. Benicia. At precisely 12 o'clock His Majesty left the Palace, on foot, under a salute from the Punchbowl Battery and from the Benicia, accompanied by Prince Leleiobokn the Heir Apparent, the Chancellor of the Kingdom, and members of the Staff, and proceeded to the new Government building, in the yard of which, forming two lines from the entrance were drawn up the Royal Body Guard, who presented arms as the King passed between them, the band playing the National Anthem. At the entrance of the Government House His Majesty was received by the members of his Cabinet, and entering the Hall, the entire audience rose and remained standing while he read in a clear and distinct voice, the following

The first of these elected my Predecessor, His late Majesty LUNALILO, and at the same Session, certain amendments of the Constitution were proposed. In the Providence of the Almighty, it was not permitted to the King LUNALILO to see the accomplishment of his hopes. Scarcely one year of his reign had passed ere he was summoned away. Last Saturday at just five o'clock P.
